

Please allow satellite radio to use the technology available to best serve the public. There should not be restrictions to give AM and FM an advantage over satellite radio. With digital radio now possible, the public stations can compete with satellite radio on level ground. I would love to be able to listen to radio for free, but until it offers something worth listenning to, I will continue to pay for satellite radio. If satellite does a better job of offering local content than I am willing to pay for that. Most of the public stations around me have nothing but national feeds anyway and are owned by national companies like Clear Channel, not stations in touch with the local area. If satellite can better serve the customers, then please let them do it.
